Carers and the Care Act
You are entitled to an assessment of your own needs, regardless of whether the person you care for has eligible needs.

This means, that as a carer, if you have eligible needs of your own, you will have the right to have support to help you carry on caring and look after your own wellbeing.

Your council recognises and values your role as a carer and sees you as vital in planning and providing support to the person you care for.

Caring for someone covers lots of different areas, like helping with washing, dressing or eating, taking the person you care for to regular appointments or keeping them company when they feel lonely or anxious. Looking after someone can be tiring and stressful and can take up a lot of your time. It can often end up affecting your own health, wellbeing and independence.
As carers, you want to be able to access timely support when you need it. We therefore will work with you to ensure that you:

- have access to good information and advice
- are signposted or directed to appropriate agencies such as benefits advice lines, websites, libraries, citizen advice bureaux, leisure centres and work opportunities
- are informed of your right to have a carer’s assessment, either jointly with the cared for person or separately
- are involved in planning and decision-making from the outset so that you and the person you care for have choice and control over your care and support
- are supported in maintaining a balance between your caring responsibilities and a life outside caring – this includes young carers
- can access a range of support services when you need it (for example, respite care/ carers breaks, access to carers groups, support systems and emergency care) to help sustain you in your caring role
- are supported to maintain your own health and wellbeing.
Assessing your wellbeing

The assessment will look at the different ways caring affects your life. It will look at how you can carry on doing things that are important to you and your household. Your physical, mental and emotional well-being will be at the heart of this assessment.

You can have a carer’s assessment even if the person you care for does not get any help from the council. This may be carried out by council staff or staff from the carers organisation in your borough.

Following an assessment you may be eligible for support in your own right. This does not depend on whether the adult for whom you provide care/support has eligible needs. The decision about your eligibility is based on the impact of caring on your wellbeing. The person assessing you will explain the process in more detail.

Assessing the person you care for

It can be very useful to you as a carer and the person you care for to have an assessment of their needs.

Following an assessment, provided the person you care for has eligible needs, they can receive support from Adult Social Care.

For more information on assessments, telephone RBKC Social Services on 020 7361 3013
There are a range of services available to support carers; many of them you do not need to have an assessment to get.

These include personalised advice and information, or you may prefer just to be put in touch with local support groups so you have people to talk to. See details of your carer support organisation in your borough on the next page. Carers organisations have full details of the range of services locally.

If following an assessment you have eligible needs, the assessor will help you plan your support options to help you in your caring role. One of these may be a carer’s personal budget. This is a sum of money which you can use to pay for support and activities which will help you to manage the demands of being a carer. The assessor can provide more information about carer’s personal budgets following an assessment.

For more information on how to get a carers assessment you can telephone:
Carers Kensington & Chelsea on 0800 032 1089 (free from BT landlines) or RBKC Social Services on 020 7361 3013
